

Major project fees may apply to complex rail projects.

1 What is a major project?

A major project is the delivery of a significant change to railway infrastructure or rolling stock by one or more entities. Major project fees will apply to very few railway operations.

2 Fee types

There are two types of major project fees:

- > An application (complex operations) fee – applies only to entities which are not currently accredited and which seek accreditation for all or part of the railway operations for a major project. This fee for 2026-27 is $99,184 and applies in addition to the application for accreditation fee of $10,000.
- > An annual project component fee (project component fee) – there are three fixed fee amounts depending on the level of complexity:
 - $246,173
 - $174,061
 - $115,626

The major project fee amounts are published in Schedule 3 to the National Regulations.

3 Determining which fees are payable

The decision of which fees apply is made by the Regulator following engagement with the project proponent. The key considerations are:

- > the significance of the proposed change, and
- > the scale and complexity of the regulatory oversight that will be required.

This will include consideration of the factors prescribed in Schedule 3, Part 2 of the National Regulations. Examples of annual fees applicable to major projects are provided in the ONRSR Fees Policy.

4 Notification process

Following engagement with the project proponent, the Regulator will notify the proponent in writing if a major project fee is being considered. If the proponent does not agree their railway operations constitute a major project they may, within seven days, respond in writing setting out the reasons why the fee/s should not be charged.

5 Right of review

Following a decision of the Regulator to apply the fee, a notice will be provided to the rail transport operator, which will include:

- > Amount payable
- > Reasons for charging the fee
- > Date from which the fee will be applied
- > Information regarding the right of review

6 Term of the annual fee

After the amount payable has been notified to the proponent in writing, the annual fee becomes payable from the date that railway operations commence in accordance with section 4(1) of the RSNL. Once the major project is complete, the annual project component fee will no longer apply with annual accreditation fees becoming applicable instead.
